Therefore, you are required to brush up your knowledge in English by taking some extra coaching in the intervening period before your arrival, if required. A prior exposure to the basics of computers knowledge will be useful for your service career.

7. Daily Routine. On working days, the trainees have to adhere meticulously to a daily routine from reveille (0430h) to lights off (2200h) to ensure all-round discipline and personality development.

8. Diagnostic Test, Physical fitness Run and Academic Preparation. On arrival at BTI, the Recruits will be subjected to a Diagnostic Test (English) and a Physical Fitness Run of 1.6 Kms to be completed within 8 minutes. Technical Aptitude Test (TAT) for your Trade Allocation would be conducted during 17th week of your training. You will be required to give utmost importance to your academic preparation to pass the Mid Term & Final Test. Passing all relevant examinations during the training is a mandatory requirement for allocation of trade.

9. Training Curriculum (Academics & GST) and Physical Stamina. Joint Basic Phase Training has been planned to inculcate Militarism, Jointmanship and prepare you for Trade Training. The training curriculum includes General Service Training (GST), Education [English & General Service Knowledge (GSK)], Basic Computer Training and Hindi. General

Service Training consists of training in Drill, Endurance Training, PT & Games, Field Craft, Small Arms and other related topics. English and Hindi languages are taught to bring up all the trainees to the required standard of proficiency in these languages. In General Service Knowledge (GSK) the trainees are taught about the following:-

- (a) Relevant information regarding IAF.
- (b) History of IAF.
- (c) Air Force Law and Air Force Regulations.
- (d) General aspects of Health and Hygiene.
- (e) Airman Like Qualities (ALQ).
- (f) Aerospace Safety.
- (g) Security and allied topics.

Apart from imparting educational knowledge, Joint Basic Phase Training is also focused on physical training so as to make you a robust Air Warrior. The tight training schedule includes physical activities to toughen your physique. You are expected to perform various physical activities during training such as running, sit-ups, push-ups, chin ups rope climbing etc. so that you achieve the desired physical standards required for the service. If you keep yourself in touch with running minimum 5-6 Kms and doing enough sit-ups, pull-ups and Push-ups for at least a month continuously before arriving at BTI, you would find it easier to go through the training syllabus.

10. Back Phasing. A trainee is likely to be back phased to next intake if he misses training for more than 20 cumulative working days for reasons beyond his control such as hospitalization / leave etc.

11. Poor Academic Performance & Cease Training. If a trainee fails in any subject (GSK, Eng or GST) in any of the examination i.e. Mid Term Test (MTT), Final Test (FT), he is issued with a warning letter for his failure. Any further failure in any subject will lead to Cease Training and Discharge after due procedure. Before this, all trainees are given adequate opportunity to make the grade. Extra coaching is imparted to weak trainees through extra classes after working hours.

12. Voluntary discharge. The trainee can opt for 'Voluntary Discharge' through proper channel in the following cases:-

- (a) On grounds of improvement of self-career prospects provided the trainee has appeared in the written exam / selection test prior to being enrolled in IAF.
